Where are the skills imbalances?

In Hungary, Verbal Abilities, Memory and Attentiveness are Abilities in shortage. Shortages in Service Orientation Skills are also pervasive and stronger than in the average of the OECD, while the demand for other high-level cognitive skills (System Analysis or Judgement and Decision Making) is relatively lower than in the rest of the OECD. Hungary also faces shortages in several Knowledge areas (Psychology, Customer and Personal Service and Education and Training).

Skills shortages occur when the skills sought by employers are not available in the pool of potential recruits, whereas skills surpluses occur when the supply of certain skills is higher than the demand for them. The OECD Skill Needs Indicators measure the degree of shortage (positive values) and surpluses (negative values) for a range of dimensions, such as Skills, Abilities, and Knowledge areas. Results are presented on a scale that ranges between -1 and +1. The maximum value reflects the strongest shortage observed across OECD (31) countries and skills dimensions.
Where are the jobs in high-demand in your country?

In Hungary over 6 out of 10 jobs facing skill shortage are in occupations requiring medium skills. 27% of jobs that are hard-to-fill are instead in high-skill occupations, a share that is lower compared to the OECD average. Demand for low skilled workers in Hungary is 9%, close to the OECD average.

Which sectors face the largest occupational shortages?

The service sector, especially Accommodation and Food Services, are facing the largest occupational shortages in Hungary. The sectors with the largest surpluses are Agriculture, Forestry and Fishing and Financial.

How is the alignment of talent to job requirements?

3 out of 10 workers in Hungary are either over- or under-qualified for the work that they are doing. In Hungary, over 50% of graduates in the fields of Arts and Humanities, Natural Sciences, Mathematics and Statistics, ICT and Agriculture, Forestry and Veterinary work in a job different from the field they specialised in (field-of-study mismatch).